TEACHER OF CLASSICS

Full or Part Time

WELCOME

I am delighted that you are considering this opportunity at North London Collegiate School.

North London Collegiate School (NLCS) was founded in 1850 by Frances Buss, an early pioneer of girls' education. NLCS is one of the country's most illustrious academic day schools.

The School provides an ambitious academic education and achieves some of the best results in the country. The focus in the classroom is on fostering a deep love of learning and our teachers are passionate subject experts. The School has a strong intellectual tradition but it is also defined by an ongoing commitment to innovation. The school's new innovation hub will be a centre for creative thinking and pioneering curriculum development.

Pupils benefit from an exceptional range of activities beyond the classroom through our co-curricular and academic enrichment programmes. We welcome over 250 visiting speakers per year, we offer 18 different sports, host over 40 concerts and several ambitious dramatic productions each year, publish multiple student-led magazines, and offer activities as varied as Model United Nations, Chess, VEX Robotics and Magic Club.

Our pastoral care is focused on developing happy, independent and resilient young women. Our pupils are free to be themselves at School but ready to embrace the opportunities of the world beyond NLCS. Our community is welcoming and inclusive and celebrates its rich diversity.

At NLCS, we deeply value our staff and are committed to their well-being and professional growth. We understand that a supportive and nurturing environment is crucial for everyone, not just our students. Our comprehensive staff development programme and strong support network ensure that our staff thrive both professionally and personally.

We are looking for an exceptional teacher of Classics to teach our highly engaged and ambitious students from the start of the next academic year. The Classics department is at the forefront of pedagogical developments within the School and is made up of well qualified, experienced teachers. We are looking for candidates with excellent subject knowledge, a commitment to innovative teaching and a caring approach in the classroom. We are happy to consider both full and part time applications.

VICKY BINGHAM
HEADMISTRESS

THE SCHOOL

North London Collegiate School has an international reputation for academic excellence, combined with exceptional pastoral care and extra-curricular achievement. NLCS is an academically selective girls' school. There are 790 students in the Senior School, 233 of them in the Sixth Form, and approximately 310 in the Junior School. The School takes pride in the religious and social diversity of its intake.

The School's aims are to provide an ambitious education for all its pupils and to enable each girl to make the most of her own gifts. The highest priority is to maintain a team of professional teachers to whom each pupil is important, and who can teach their subject(s) with enthusiasm and drive. All pupils are expected to learn to recognise academic excellence and realise that it is attainable.

Alongside these aims for the classroom, staff strive to make school a place where the whole personality can grow. Good relations between staff and pupils, and between girls themselves, are fostered. At NLCS, education is much more than passing examinations and the girls are encouraged to try themselves out in a variety of ways. Staff strive to maintain a community which is tolerant and teaches service to others.

Set in over 30 acres of parkland, the School has extensive facilities. These include a new Wellbeing Centre which underlines the School's commitment to ensuring that NLCS continues to provide as rounded and supportive a pastoral offering as is possible.

In 2024, 70% of GCSEs were a grade 9, and a notable 89% of grades were 9/8. At A-Level our students achieved an impressive 46% A* grades, 84% A* - A and 96% A* - B. In addition to A-Levels, we offer the International Baccalaureate in the Sixth Form and we have an outstanding record of success. Our students gained an average point score of 41 in 2024, placing us again among the best IB schools in the world.

Places are heavily oversubscribed, and entry is extremely competitive.

Our leavers receive offers from an impressive range of university destinations including Oxford, Cambridge, Harvard, Yale and Princeton, as well as other leading universities such as Warwick, Edinburgh, UCL and Imperial. We are extremely proud of our alumnae (Old North Londoners), who have achieved international prominence in a wide variety of career pathways from music, drama and the arts through to science, sports, politics and law.

We have an extensive schedule of extra-curricular activities including a weekly speakers' programme for all students in Years 11, 12 and 13. NLCS students regularly reach the finals of national and international competitions, such as F11 in Schools, chess, Young Enterprise, coding and debating.

There is also a remarkable commitment to outreach and charity work, reflecting the rich and harmonious diversity of the School.

TEACHER OF CLASSICS

THE OPPORTUNITY

This is an excellent opportunity for a first-rate Classics Teacher to teach at all levels across the School. The successful applicant will be expected to play a significant role in co-curricular activities, and they will have a deep commitment to, and knowledge of, delivering excellent pastoral care to the students in their care.

Our ideal candidate will have both the commitment and ability to enthuse and motivate our students to ensure excellent progress is made by all. They will be a dynamic teacher who encourages a love for the subject through both their teaching and their involvement in co-curricular offers. The successful candidate should have a genuine passion for the subject, the ability to be an outstanding teacher of their subject and be committed to raising achievement, raising aspirations and going the extra mile.

THE CURRICULUM

Latin is taught to all girls in the first three years (years 7-9). The Cambridge Latin Course is used, supplemented by additional material devised and shared by members of the Department. Latin is typically chosen by at least a third of the year group for GCSE (for which we follow the OCR GCSE specification). From Year 10, Classical Greek is offered, and is taken in healthy numbers; girls follow John Taylor's "Greek to GCSE" course before moving onto the set texts, again leading to the OCR qualification.

In the Sixth Form, healthy numbers of students choose to continue their Latin and Greek studies through either the OCR A level or the IB. In the IB courses, students research an area of the ancient world in which they have a particular interest for their Internal Assessment. We also offer Classical Civilisation (OCR A Level), with papers on The World of the Hero, Greek Theatre and Athenian Democracy.

Each year several students apply for related courses at university, including straight Classics, Ancient History or courses combining Classics with another discipline, such as English or Modern Languages. The department offers individual support for university interviews and language tests. As part of the Sixth Form activities programme, we run enrichment courses for Year 12 students offering an introduction to Greek and Latin Literature, and for Year 13, more in-depth courses on Tragedy and Epic, as well as a course on ancient history.

THE DEPARTMENT

The Classics Department aims to emphasise the inherent wonder and excitement of the ancient world, its language, literature, culture and history, and as a secondary consideration, its influence on other languages, culture and thought. We pride ourselves on engaging all the students we teach through a wide variety of approaches and activities, using the full breadth of Classics to find something to interest every individual student.

We are a friendly and flourishing department of six teachers, including our own Headmistress, who all share a passion for the subject. Based in our own office, with a suite of four classrooms, we use a combination of digital and material resources in tandem with smartboards in each classroom to provide lessons rich with variety.

The department has a substantial collection of its own books and other shared resources. We aim to combine scholarly and knowledgeable teaching with a strong emphasis on enabling all pupils to enjoy our lessons. Central to the ethos of the department is a spirit of community and collaboration, whereby we share both resources and ideas about best practice.

ENRICHMENT

The Classics Department runs an annual trip to Classical sites abroad. A range of study days and trips is arranged for students, from the British Museum and Roman Empire mornings for younger students, to discussions with and lectures from university academics for Years 10-13 in London, Oxford and Cambridge. Evening theatre trips are also common. In Years 10 and 11, we run a popular essay competition over the summer holidays and students produce a Classics Magazine, 'Achilles' Reel'.

The Classics Society (run by Year 13 students) is active and busy, running weekly discussion sessions for students in Year 10 and above, inviting visiting speakers, and helping the Middle School Classics Club. Every year, pupils and staff organise a Classics Week during the Spring Term, featuring whole-school assemblies and other events such as quizzes, competitions, and short lectures.

A member of the department runs a Latin club in the Junior School at NLCS, and a group of Sixth Form students teaches Latin to children at a local primary school using the 'Minimus' course. Students are encouraged to attend Classics-related residential courses, such as the JACT Greek Summer School. All members of staff in the department take an active role in the provision of our extra-curricular activities.

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

PROFESSIONAL OPPORTUNITIES & DEVELOPMENT

There is a strong culture of professional development at the School, rooted in the expectation that all staff proactively seek to develop their practice throughout their time with us.

A fortnightly Teaching and Learning Forum offers staff the opportunity to present and discuss pedagogy. In addition to this, there are regular guided lesson observations with senior members of staff, to encourage colleagues to think critically about their own teaching and experiment with new approaches.

Internal promotion and professional development posts are advertised to all staff. In addition, the School also offers a number of generous external opportunities for staff, to expose them to wider educational experiences. The School works closely with The Prince's Teaching Institute, investing in "unlimited" membership of the PTII, which offers our staff the opportunity to attend their full programme of events.

It is important for our teachers to refine their knowledge to further enhance the academic rigour of their lessons. To this end several of our academic staff lead PTI sessions in their own specialist areas.

As part of the wider Senior School, staff benefit from being able to attend the Senior Societies lecture series given by eminent speakers. Staff are also encouraged to share their passions through our Nicholson Lectures series. Colleagues present their own research on areas of academic or personal interest. These lectures occupy a prestigious place in our academic calendar, occurring fortnightly and are well attended by staff and students alike.

Following the opening of four partnership schools, NLCS Jeju (South Korea), NLCS Dubai, NLCS Singapore, and NLCS Vietnam, staff in the UK have opportunities to be involved in monitoring visits to these overseas schools, and to be involved in the recruitment and training of their staff.

Teaching departments in all the schools are linked via Communities of Practice, which provide a forum for collaboration on projects between teachers and students, sharing of good practice and exchange of ideas.

All of these opportunities enable colleagues to become better and more rounded academics and teachers, and our staff relish the chance to get involved in such activities.

EQUALITY, DIVERSITY & INCLUSIVITY

North London Collegiate School condemns unequivocally discrimination and inequality in all its forms.

Our School was founded on the principles of respect and compassion, service to others, and active, positive participation in society and the wider world. We cannot change the past, but we must learn from it. It is not sufficient to say that we are not racist – we must be actively anti-racist in our actions, policies and educational delivery.

As a school, we are proud of our heritage of supporting, embracing and celebrating all the members of our community, as exemplified in our School Aims.

We recognise and celebrate the benefits of having a diverse school community, in which individuals value themselves, one another, and the different contributions that everyone can make to the school, our wider community and the world.

Our students are taught to value and respect themselves and others as they work hard to prepare to take leading roles in our future society.

In the provision of equal opportunities, the School recognises and accepts its responsibilities under the law and opposes discrimination based on the protected characteristics under the Equality Act 2010.

We oppose all bullying and unlawful discrimination on the basis that a person has a special educational need or learning difficulty, or because English is an additional language. We are committed to being an equal opportunities education provider, and to equality of opportunity for all members of our school community.

North London Collegiate School aims to ensure that all policies and practices conform with the principle of equal opportunities and comply with the public sector equality duty set out in section 149 of the Equality Act 2010.

We will tackle inappropriate attitudes and practices through our staff leading by example, through the Personal, Social and Health Education (PSHE) programme, through our supportive school culture and through our school's policies. Our teaching will reflect the diverse nature of our modern world and we will seek through our extracurricular activities, partnerships and School societies to challenge inequality and inequity, promulgate fairness and equality for all and to celebrate the differences that make us all unique and valuable members of society.

We believe that our School community is an agent for change in the world, and we continue to seek to ensure that more generations of young people leave North London Collegiate School empowered and enabled to take the next steps forward in their education and lives for their own benefit and for the good of society as a whole.
