

THE DEPARTMENT

The Psychology Department consists of two dedicated teachers who, as a team, enjoy exploring new ideas, producing and sharing resources and ensuring that pupils are given as many enriching opportunities as is possible. In recent years, pupils have enjoyed a 'Brain Day' with Guy Sutton, a 'Behind Bars' Forensic Psychology conference and Psychology 'Science' Conferences in London. In addition, all pupils have access to a dedicated Psychology website, which contains their lesson resources and extension materials, as well as up-to-date university, personal statement and career information. We aim to create an environment that encourages independence and inspires a lifelong love of learning Psychology.

The Department's uptake of pupils studying Psychology is very strong, always between two and three classes in each of Year 12 and Year 13. With these numbers, Psychology is one of the most popular A level subjects on offer at STAHS. We are particularly proud of the large proportion of our Year 13 pupils who have chosen to study Psychology at university, as well as the great numbers of Year 12 pupils who are already keen to pursue careers as Clinical, Forensic or Educational Psychologists. With these career paths in mind, we have chosen to study Schizophrenia, Forensic Psychology and Cognition and Development as our optional modules, as per the AQA A Level specification.

Beyond A level Psychology, we run a Sixth Form Stretch programme where we meet with pupils who are keen to study Psychology at degree level on a weekly basis. They are provided with challenges designed to improve the depth and breadth of their psychological knowledge, as well as ensuring that they are able to produce impressive personal statements that stand out from the crowd.

In addition, we run a series of co-curricular clubs including 'PsychFlix', where we watch and discuss psychology-based documentaries. We also host an annual film event for the whole of Year 11 around Christmas, where we have watched and discussed, for example, 'A Beautiful Mind' and 'The Truman Show'. The aim is to help pupils lower down in the school with no knowledge or experiences of Psychology to better understand what this discipline involves, with the hope of sparking their enthusiasm to study Psychology at A level, as well as ensuring that they are able to make an informed choice when the time comes.
